A QUESTION

Oftener propounded to a real estate man than any other

"Is there any show for selling my Farm or my city property at the present time."

—:o:—

There Is But One Answer to the interrogation, and

IT IS THIS

First sift your own feelings and circumstances until you can positively decide whether you want to sell or not, and in the event that you do, put a price on it that represents a fair value of your property, and at which you are willing to sell and then go to a real estate firm that are selling property, and such a firm is that of

Our Home "Riverview,"

Is for sale. Mr. Elliott and family are to vacate it May 1st, and it is larger than we can occupy to advantage. It is by far the best home in this city and it is hard to duplicate (everything considered) in the United States for the money it costs. The site is superb. It embraces ten full city lots 4 by 8 rods. The house and barn are everyway right. It is worthy the attention of any one seeking a first class home. As we before said, we will sell it and will give possession May 1st.

We have an an architect working on plans for a smaller but equally good house, to be built for ourselves directly opposite "Riverview", and if we can sell this we shall have it built to occupy by July 15th.

This is an unusually attractive opportunity. Come and see us

Our Home nal

"The Home" has been a source of much pleasure to us and that it has not been of much profit in way of money, cuts no figure. But owing to the fact that we are driven in our other lines of work and that we are to lose the editorial assistance of Mr. Elliott, we have concluded to abandon the publication of the same. Friends who have paid for 1891 can have their quarter by calling at our office. Thanking our readers and promising that they shall hear from us frequently in some form, we are

Yours very truly.

Never Before

Were we so well fixed to meet Homeseekers and lot buyers as we are at this time, Any one desiring a home can get it if they will call on us, at terms so easy that they must buy. A few very choice lots for sale on South Main Street and in Glen-Etta and Riverview Park.

BANKS DOORS CLOSED.

The Washington National Bank of New York Suspends.

IT IS WRECKED BY ITS PRESIDENT.

He Lends Nearly Half of the Capital of the Institution on Securities That Are Worthless — Details of the Failure.

A BANK'S COLLAPSE.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Official announcement was made late Monday night that the Washington national bank at No. 1 Broadway would not open its doors to-day. The bank's resources have been loaned out by the president to two friends, and the discovery of its condition was accidentally made. The bank is not a member of the Clearing house association, but clears through the Gallatin national bank. Under a rule of the clearing house which went into effect January 1 the banks clearing in this way must submit their accounts to examination by the clearing house. Monday Bank Examiner Hepburn, representing the clearing house, appeared at the Washington bank to examine its affairs. He soon discovered that its capital was impaired. As soon as this announcement was made President Sherman, who has been in charge of the bank, was prostrated, but recovered sufficiently to inform the directory that he had been too liberal in loaning money to his friends. Two accounts have been discovered that foot up $121,000 that are probably total losses. One is for $70,000, secured by poor and worthless collateral, and the other, a draft for $50,000 on John Silva, which had been cashed by the president and "hung on a hook." It is said that Mr. Silva has promised to make this draft good to-day. The bank had a capital of $300,000 and deposits of $600,000. The only officers present when the complete announcement was made by the bank examiner were the cashier, J. T. Grainger, and director Sidney Tilghman. The president had then gone away, no one knew where. The president of the Gallatin bank at once gave notice that his institution would no longer clear for the Washington bank. This news prevented any attempt being made to make up the losses.

Cashier Grainger said that the developments were a surprise to both himself and the directors. None of them had any idea that the president was involved in any irregular transactions, and he could say nothing about details of the method by which the funds were withdrawn. Mr. Tilghman, a director of the Washington national bank, says the impairment of the capital is in the neighborhood of $135,000. He continued:

"The bank began business last June with a paid-up capital of $300,000. The directors all had confidence in the president, Mr. Sherman, and it did seem as though a man, who had been the cashier of an active New York bank for a number of years, which had deposits and capital amounting to nearly $7,000,000, would be able to run successfully a small bank starting with $300,000 capital. The directors have held regular meetings and have given considerable attention to the details of the bank, but it seems it was not possible to follow the intricacies of a well-conceived plan for hiding facts in regard to the condition of the bank. Our net deposits at the present time are only about $600,000. Our capital, although only $300,000, I feel sure is more than enough to secure every depositor. I am positive that every depositor will be paid in full without any call on the stockholders."

President Sherman said:

"I wish to have it understood that I alone bear the burden of responsibility. It was impossible for me to avoid the overdraft, and after it was made I could do no better than to make it a loan. Permitting a man to open an account by depositing out-of-town drafts and drawing against them was an error of judgment—a very unfortunate error. No one friendly has been benefited by the transaction, nor was there any real attempt to conceal the affairs of my administration of the institution from the directors. They were fully informed of the transfer of the overdraft to a loan. The other affair I did not mention for one reason only, and that was that I hoped that the man, if his difficulties were not noised abroad, would be able to cover his shortage. "I have shown too much sympathy. A bank officer has no right to have a heart or to try to save a man who is in difficulties. Still it is hard to see a worthy man go down without an effort being made to save him."

He admitted that the security was not first-class Wall street collateral, but he hoped to recover the money in a short time. He did not believe, and does not believe now, that the account will be lost. But the security he had taken, he said, would not stand the scrutiny of the clearing house. This overdraft was between $73,000 and $75,000.

President Sherman said that the depositors would be all secured. There would be some little loss, but that would come out of the stockholders. The depositors might have to wait a short time because money had been lent on notes which could not be collected now.

LUCIUS ROBINSON.

Death at Elmira of the Ex-Governor of New York—His Career.

ELMIRA, N. Y., March 24.—Ex-Gov. Lucius Robinson died at his home in this city at 12:55 p. m. Monday.

[Lucius Robinson was born at Wyndham, Greene county, N. Y., November 4, 1810. His father was a farmer and gave him an academic education. He began practicing law in 1832. In 1840 he moved to New York and was made master in chancery of a New York court in 1843. He was for a long time a member of the Tammany hall general committee. About 1855 he moved to a farm near Elmira. He was a member of the state legislature several years, and was state comptroller three terms. He was elected governor by the democrats in 1873. In that office he incurred the displeasure of Tammany men, and especially of John Kelly. The first time that Mr. Robinson ran for state comptroller he received a majority of 108,201.]

Failure in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, March 24.—The Milwaukee bridge and iron works, of which Messrs. Keeper and Riddell were the principal stockholders, has made an assignment. The bond of Hamilton Townsend, the assignee, was fixed at $200,000. The liabilities of the company are reported at $200,000. The assets are not given, but it is claimed they will exceed the liabilities. Slow collections are given as the cause of the failure.

Jumped and Saved Her Life.

RAMSEY, Ill., March 24.—Miss Nora Gray while crossing Ramsey creek on the railroad bridge was surprised by the approach of a train. In her fright she jumped from the bridge, which is fifty feet high, but was not seriously injured.

Bad Failure in Pennsylvania.

YORK, Pa., March 24.—Michael Schall and James M. Donner, trading as Schall & Donner, bankers, have assigned to Edward Chapin. The liabilities and assets of the bank cannot be ascertained, but it is a complete failure.

KINCAID ON TRIAL.

The Slayer of Ex-Congressman Taulbee, of Kentucky, Pleads Not Guilty.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—In the criminal court Charles E. Kincaid pleaded "not guilty" to the indictment for the murder of ex-Congressman Taulbee. The work of procuring a jury was then proceeded with, with a measure of success, seven having been obtained before the noon recess.

The trial will attract widespread attention as the witnesses come from such distant and widely separated parts of the country as Massachusetts, New York, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Alabama and Louisiana. The affidavits filed in the criminal court relative to the summoning of witnesses indicate that the plea of self-defense will be made, as it is stated that the witnesses are to prove that Taulbee had made threats against Kincaid.

[Mr. Taulbee was shot on February 28, 1890, and died in the following month. The shooting grew out of a trouble which had existed between him and Kincaid for nearly two years and it was started by the publication by Kincaid, who was a resident newspaper correspondent, of an article about Taulbee of a sensational character. This story appeared one morning in the newspapers of Washington and as it concerned Kentucky people, Kincaid, who represented the Louisville Times, an afternoon paper, telegraphed it to that paper, as well as to the New York Morning Journal, one of the papers wiring him for the story.]

SENSATION IN MICHIGAN.

Charges of Attempted Bribery in Connection with the Plan of Reapportionment.

LANSING, Mich., March 24.—The scandal arising out of the statement of Senator Wilcox, the labor representative of the Twelfth district, that an attempt had been made to bribe him to vote with the republicans against the redistricting bill, is assuming large proportions. Senator Wilcox has admitted that the man who informed him that the independent senators had the chance of their lives if they would vote with the republicans on political measures, and that the votes of three of them would have a market value of $30,000, was George W. Owen, of Owosso. Owen is the publisher of the Shiawassee American and is well known as a stalwart republican. Owen said that he never offered Wilcox $30,000. At an evening session held at 10 o'clock Monday night the senate unanimously adopted a resolution appointing a special committee to fully investigate the whole matter.

OF THE SIMPLEST KIND.

Funeral Services Held at New York Over the Remains of Lawrence Barrett—The Departure for Boston.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Lawrence Barrett's funeral services were conducted in one of the parlors of the Windsor hotel by Rev. Thomas Sherman and were of the simplest character, consisting only of the prayers for the dead. The casket was of rosewood covered with black cloth. On its lid lay two floral gifts, one a cross of white lilies from Mary Anderson and the other a wreath of roses from Gen. W. W. Blackmar, of Boston. About fifty people were present during the services. The services lasted just ten minutes, and at their close the body of the tragedian was at once taken to the Grand Central depot where it was placed in a funeral car on the 11 a. m. train of the New Haven railway for Boston.

DIED IN THEIR SHAME.

A Liason Between a Des Moines Business Man and a Kansas City Woman Ends in Death.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 24.—R. S. Hatton, a man 40 years of age and of high social and business standing, and a woman whose name is given as Mrs. Russell, of St. Joseph, Mo., were found dead together in a room on Walnut street. It is believed both were intoxicated and failed to detect gas escaping from a bathtub heater. Mr. Hatton was a bachelor and Mrs. Russell is said to be of high social standing in St. Joseph, where she leaves a husband. The two were lovers, but the woman had married Mr. Russell while she and Mr. Hatton had a misunderstanding. During the last few years Mrs. Russell is said to have paid regular visits to Mr. Hatton in Des Moines.

Charged with Fraud.

MADISON, Wis., March 24.—C. A. Mather, of the former banking firm of C. A. Mather & Co., at Berlin, Wis., was arrested here Saturday afternoon on a warrant charging him with receiving $1,000 on deposit after he knew the concern to be insolvent. The Mather bank was ruined through the crookedness of young Ed Hawley, a nephew of Mather and junior member of the firm. Hawley is now in Canada. Mather is over 80 years of age, and for some months past has resided with his wife in the suburbs of this city.

Disastrous Prairie Fire in Kansas.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., March 24.—A disastrous prairie fire is raging 20 miles east of this place, where a number of farms have been burned over. Horses and cattle have perished, and it is reported that a number of lives have been lost. The wind is blowing a terrific gale.

Killed His Father.

HILLSBORO, O., March 24.—William W. Moore, a wealthy farmer and stock-raiser near New Vienna, this county, was shot and instantly killed by his son Oscar. The claim is made that the shooting was done in self-defense. Young Moore is under arrest.

More Warships for Chili.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The continued warlike news from Chili renders it likely that the Charleston will be sent along with the San Francisco to join the Baltimore and the Pensacola in those waters.

Prince Napoleon's Will.

ROME, March 24.—The fortune of the late Prince Napoleon, amounting to £12,000 yearly, is divided among his children—£6,000 going to Prince Louis and £3,000 each to Prince Victor and Princess Letitia. It is stated that all the manuscripts and historical documents are left to Prince Louis. King Humbert has forbidden Prince Victor to issue a manifesto from Italy.

Illinois Republicans.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 24.—W. W. Tracy, president of the state league of republican clubs, has issued a call for a meeting of the executive committee of the state league in this city April 1, to select delegates to represent Illinois at the national convention of the republican league to be held in Cincinnati April 21.

PECK BENDS

Chairman Wall Brings Him Into Line Against The Waupaca Home.

The Bill Appropriating Money For the Support of Veterans Vetoed.

The Governor Urges Lack of State Supervision As A Ground.

Defeat of the Measure Requiring the Marking of Prison Made Goods.

MADISON, March 24—[Special]—Governor Peck's backbone has given way under the pressure exerted by Governor Wall. The bill for the appropriation of $50,000 toward the support of indigent veterans in the Waupaca home, was returned to-day with a veto message attached. As the bill was the first on which Peck had taken issue with the chairman, the outcome is regarded as significant. Governor Peck's ground for the veto was that the state did not have sufficient voice in the management of the home.

In the assembly to-day a dozen bills were killed, including one making it compulsory to mark prison made goods.

HEALY BADLY HURT.

A Violent Assault On One of Parnell's Opponents.

CORK, March 24.—Mr. Timothy D. Healy, M. P., had a very rough experience in this city Monday, being assaulted and seriously injured. He had attended the assizes, being interested in a case in which his brother, Maurice Healy, to whom Mr. Parnell recently sent his famous resignation challenge, had obtained damages for libel against a local member of the Parnellite party. Upon leaving the courtroom at the conclusion of the trial Mr. Timothy Healy was soon surrounded by a howling mob, who followed him along the street and made a number of attempts to assault him. The crowd finally became so violent that Mr. Healy to escape his tormentors was compelled to beat a retreat and take refuge in the dressingroom of the Victoria hotel. But this proved to be only a temporary place of safety, for, before Mr. Healy could recover from the effects of the mob's rough usage, a man suddenly rushed into the room, turned out the light, and then struck Mr. Healy a powerful blow in the face, smashing his eye-glasses to pieces. When assistance arrived and the room was again lighted Mr. Healy was found to have been badly injured, as he had received numerous cuts from the broken pieces of his eye-glasses, and the blood was pouring down his face in streams. He was removed to a room, and, as he appeared to be suffering intense pain, a number of physicians were summoned. Three doctors are now in attendance. They have made an examination of the wounds in his eyes and express the fear that Mr. Healy's injuries may result in the loss of his sight. Healy's assailant is O'Brien Dalton, who was connected with the Tipperary conspiracy. He first upbraided Healy for his insulting speech, which, he says, Healy made while Dalton was in prison. He then struck Healy. The glass injured the coats of Healy's left eye and inflicted an incised wound an inch below the eyelid.

LONDON, March 24.—Mr. Parnell has decided to resign his seat for Cork City on the condition that Maurice Healy does the same thing. Technically no member of parliament can resign, but the matter is reached by applying for a nominal position which is called the stewardship of the "Chiltern Hundreds." Mr. Parnell has written a letter to the leader of his Cork committee stating that the tone of studied insult and the untruthful character of the statements comprised in Maurice Healy's letter with regard to the matter of contesting that constituency are such as debar him from communicating directly with Mr. Healy or the friends of that gentleman. Mr. Parnell declares it impossible to expect that any agreement looking to a mutual resignation from parliament and the subsequent contest of the constituency by Mr. Healy and himself would be respected by the former gentleman for a moment longer than he deemed it expedient to stand by it. Mr. Parnell then informs the committee that he has placed his application for the Chiltern Hundreds in the hands of Mr. Nolan with the request that it be proffered the moment Mr. Healy presents himself before his Cork constituents for re-election.

Mr. Maurice Healy, when questioned Monday about Mr. Parnell's letter to the leadership committee saying that application for the Chiltern Hundreds was in the hands of Mr. Nolan, said that he had not seen the letter referred to, but if the resignation was genuine he (Mr. Healy) would instantly meet it.

Messrs. William O'Brien and John Dillon, the members of parliament who have been undergoing terms of imprisonment in Galway jail, were transferred on Monday to Cork jail. They were recognized upon their arrival at the railway station here and as they were driving through the streets upon jaunting cars, guarded by a police escort. The prisoners received an ovation from the people in the steeets.

MORE BLOODSHED.

Trouble Over the Mafia Lynching Causes the Murder of a Mississippian by an Editor.

VICKSBURG, Miss., March 24.—Ernest Hardenstein, business manager of a weekly publication, was shot and killed by John G. Cashman, editor of the Evening Post, Monday evening on Vicksburg's principal thoroughfare. The tragedy grew out of the lynching of the Italians in New Orleans. Hardenstein made certain strictures of Cashman's editorial treatment of the lynching, and Cashman in a card published Monday afternoon denounced Hardenstein's statement as a willful lie. The two men met on Washington street, and after a brief altercation Cashman drew his revolver and fired two shots, one of them piercing Hardenstein's heart. Cashman is under arrest.

ANOTHER ENGLISH TRUST—CALICO.

A gigantic trust of calico manufacturers is under way in England. The object is to check competition and thus to put up prices.

"The promoters," says a prominent trade paper, "reckon that machines, representing about half the productive capacity of the country, will pass under their control, and the accountants are now busily engaged in investigating the books of the various firms that have consented to amalgamate, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of profits—whether there have been any—value of plant, or water rights, &c."

In view of such facts as this, the "reformers" must excuse us if we decline to believe that trusts and combines are to be formed only under protection.

The lady from London who made a leading speech on the twenty-third anniversary of the Sorosis in New York was shocked at the male element in this country for doing business "with his feet on his desk and a cigar in his mouth.' How she was able to observe so widely as to generalize in that way does not appear, for she would not be likely to come in cotact with any Americans who did not take their feet from the desks in their own offices and remove their cigar on the entrance of a lady. She may have been on a masquerade But if the brains are more active when on a level with the feet, as scientists allege, the sacrifice of grade may be made to insure results

There is a vast deal of nonsense in the talk that Senator Call of Florida is making a fight for re-election against monopolies, railway corporations and combines against the people. The fact is that Senator Call is very poor senatorial timber and the people of his state have grown weary of him. His opponents made a fair fight and an open canvass against him. If he is defeated it will be because he does not possess the confidence of his constituents.

When Governor Mellette, of South Dakota, expresses the deliberate opinion to the president that the talk about an Indian uprising is chiefly froth at the mouth, it is fairly safe for people hundreds and thousands of miles from an Indian tepee to sleep without perturbation.

Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee, joins the several other southern senators in the statement that Cleveland has made his nomination impossible by reason of his silver letter. But senators are not always reliable oracles.

Authorities differ widely as to the aggregate number of ducks destroyed by the president in Maryland. There is a general impression, however, that a correct count cannot be had in the south.

Missouri has tried the Australian system in towns of 5,000 and over, and now extends it to all voting places.

The Prostrating Shocks

Of malarial fever are not to be counteracted by quietude with any degree of certainty or for any length of time. The eradication and prevention of diseases of a miasmatic type are, however, ascertained possibilities. Long experience has shown that there is infinitely more preventive efficacy in the fine botanic medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, than in the alkaloids, drugs and poisons which were formerly the only recognized means of removing and anticipating attacks of fever and ague and bilious remittant. When the system has been depleted by periodically recurring paroxysms, this agreeable restorative renews the fund of energy, and is not only a positive specific but repairs the damage to the general health inflicted by all febrile complaints partaking of the malarial character.

SOME WELL KNOWN FACES.

A Noted Naval Hero.

DAVID DIXON PORTER.

David Dixon Porter was born in Chester, Pa., June 8, 1813, entered the United States navy as midshipman in 1829, cruised in the Mediterranean and served on the coast survey till 1841, when he was made a lieutenant. In 1845 he was appointed to the naval observatory, served through the entire Mexican war, returned to the coast survey and for a time commanded California mail steamers between New York and Panama. When the war broke out he was given command of the Powhatan, and went to the relief of Fort Pickens, Fla. His career during the war is well known. At the close of hostilities he was promoted vice admiral, and took charge of the naval academy at Annapolis. In 1870 he was made admiral of the navy. He died in Washington Feb. 13, 1891.

THE GREAT FAIR.

Preparing for its Dedication in October, 1892.

CHICAGO, March 24.—There will be some novel sights in Chicago October 12, 1892, if the plans of the world's fair committee on ceremonies be carried out. October 12 is the day set apart by congress for dedicating the great buildings in Jackson park, and the ceremonies committee has provided for oratory, music, a military review, tableaux illustrating the life of Columbus from a boy to a discoverer, the landing of the pilgrims, the burning of Chicago and a civic and industrial parade. There will be fireworks along the lake shore, the booming of cannons, and there will be present, if the plans be carried out, distinguished foreign potentates and citizens, the president of the United States and his cabinet, the governors of all the states and other great men of the nation. To carry out these ceremonies the directory has appropriated $150,000 and a programme has been prepared by the joint committee on ceremonies. The programme covers four days, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 11. It is reported by the committee as follows:

The committee decided to invite 10,000 troops, proportioned among the states and comprising the flower of the national guard of the United States, to participate in the dedication ceremonies. In addition to the national guard the government will order several regiments and batteries to report here at the same time.

FIRST DAY.

The grand parade of troops will take place Tuesday through the principal streets of Chicago and will end at Jackson park, where the encampment will be held.

Tuesday evening it is proposed to give a series of tableaux representing salient historical facts in the life of Columbus, of which the following is a brief description:

1. Columbus as a boy, in his humble home in Genoa.
2. Columbus in Lisbon, awaiting the tardy action or King John II.
3. The dream of Columbus. He has fallen asleep over his work and sees in his dream the fulfillment of his own ambition. The panorama moves, showing an unknown ocean; a beautiful tropical land appears; birth of a new empire.
4. Columbus before King John II., who refers him to the council on geographical affairs.
5. Columbus before the council.
6. Columbus at the court of Ferdinand and Isabella at Cordova.
7. Columbus before the council at Salamanaca in September, 1486, representing a room in the convent of St. Stephen's.
8. Columbus before the gate of the little convent on the hill with his young son.
9. Small room in same convent. A painting on the wall representing the world as it was known at the time. Columbus explains to the friar his grand idea.
10. Columbus departs for France. The mountain of Elvira and bridge of Pines. Columbus and his mule. Stopped by the queen's courtier. The message from Heaven.
11. Departure from Palos August 3, 1492. Three caravels preparing to sail.
12. Night scene, time 10 p. m., October 11, 1492. The Santa Maria, full-rigged. Columbus and figures of sailors seen upon the deck. A distant light, to which Columbus is directing attention.
13. Landing of Columbus the morning of October 12, 1492. San Salvador. Planting the standard of Spain. Tropical scenery. Natives looking upon the scene with fear and awe.
14. The court of Barcelona. Ferdinand and Isabella give a royal welcome to the great discoverer, who presents them with a new kingdom. Natives, strange woods, flowers, etc., from the new world.

SECOND DAY.

Wednesday, October 12, will be the main day of the dedication ceremonies, and will be ushered in by a national salute of forty-eight battery volleys fired by all batteries in attendance. At 10 o'clock a. m. the troops will be formed and escort the president of the United States, the diplomatic corps and distinguished foreigners to the main building. Upon the arrival of the president the consolidated bands will play "America." The entrance of the thirteen original states will take place with appropriate ceremonies—banners emblazoned with the coat of arms, the states represented by their governors, uniformed staffs, etc. Then in reasonable rapidity the different states in order of their entrance into the union.

The following or a nearly similar programme of exercises will take place:

1. Music, "Star Spangled Banner" or "Hail Columbia," with full chorus and orchestral accompaniment.
2. Prayer.
3. Commemoration ode set to music, with full chorus and orchestral accompaniment.
4. Address and report from director general.
5. Presentation of buildings by the president of the World's Columbian exposition to the president of the national commission.
6. Cantata arranged expressly for these ceremonies.
7. Buildings presented by the president of the national commission to the president of the United States.
8. Dedication oration.
9. Hallejuah chorus.
10. National salute of forty-eight battery volleys.

Wednesday evening there will probably be a continuation of tableaux representing historical events in American history, from the discovery to the present time, embracing the following scenes:

1. The Mayflower, landing of the pilgrims, the "stern and rock-bound coast," Plymouth Rock.
2. Group of pilgrims making treaty with the Indians, Miles Standish, Brewster, Winslow.
3. William Penn and his associates; historical tableaux.
4. Signing the declaration of independence; historical characters fully represented.
5. Washington, Rochambeau and Lafayette in consultation.
6. Surrender of Cornwallis.
7. Inauguration of Washington.
8. Development—Fulton's boat, Cunarder, matches, electrical appliances, railroads and bridges.
9. Discovery of gold mining. Camp.
10. "Westward the Star of Empire takes its course."
11. War.
12. Emancipation.
13. Peace—Allegory.
11, 12, and 13 to be arranged in grand transformation scenes.
14. Burning of Chicago; grand transformation scene; rebuilding; world's fair.

THIRD AND FOURTH DAYS.

Thursday there will be a mammoth civic and industrial procession, which will fully illustrate all departments of industry. It is expected to arrange floats on platform cars and move them over the cable lines of the city to Jackson park. The evening will be devoted to fireworks in all the parks and upon the lake along the entire front of the city.

There will also be a grand dedication ball in the evening.

Friday, October 14 will be the last day of the celebration, and all the ceremonies and exercises will take place in Jackson and Washington park . . . will be regimental and brigade, cavalry drills, illustrating attack . . . fortified positions. In the even . . . will be another grand display of fireworks, with many brilliant and original set pieces.

Grand vocal and instrumental concerts will form a most important portion of the ceremonies. Prof. Tomlins is now training a chorus of 1,500 voices, and will give, with the assistance of the Apollo club, of Chicago, at least two concerts in addition to rendering the choral service during the dedication ceremonies Wednesday, October 12. Upon one day he will also give a children's concert. It is probable that Theodore Thomas will be invited to take charge of the orchestra and Gilmore of the consolidated band concerts.

The subcommittee on ceremonies, to whom has been given entire charge of the dedication ceremonies, has held several meetings, and its secretary, Col. E. C. Culp, is in constant correspondence with gentlemen throughout the country, whose opinions are sought in securing data for a celebration of high order.

STANFORD'S UNIVERSITY.

President Jordan, of the Indiana University, Accepts the Offer of a Similar Position in the New California Institution.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 24.—Senator Leland Stanford, the California senator and millionaire has at last selected a president for the famous Leland Stanford Junior university of Palo Alto, and his name is David S. Jordan, the president of the Indiana university. The senator, accompanied by his wife, arrived in Bloomington Saturday evening, and Sunday morning offered Mr. Jordan the presidency of his university, stating that he had selected him after three years of careful investigation. Dr. Jordan did not accept until Monday morning, when Senator Stanford laid before him his ideas of the policy of the institution, which is to be like that of Cornell as far as practical. The salary of the president is to be $10,000 with a residence. Dr. Jordan is to accept in June, after his year's work here is completed.

[David Starr Jordan, the new president of Stanford university, is 40 years old, and seven years ago when selected president of the Indiana university was the youngest college president in the United States. He is a graduate of Cornell, class of '72, and a member of its board of trustees. He is known best to the world of sciences and has the largest collection of fishes of any private individual in the world. He is a native of New York, and began his college work in Lombard college in Galesburg, Ill. He was a pupil of Agassiz, and his works on botany and ichthiology are voluminous and standard.]

RECIPROCITY WITH HAWAII.

A New Treaty with the Island Kingdom Submitted by Secretary Blaine.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—A private letter from Honolulu says the copy of the new commercial treaty between the United States and Hawaii has been received by the new queen from Minister Carter. On March 9 the treaty was submitted to the cabinet at a secret session. This treaty provides for the fullest reciprocity between the two governments. It is substantially the same treaty which was agreed to by Kalakaua just before his death. It had previously been approved by Mr. Blaine and President Harrison and was brought to San Francisco by Mr. Carter. Secy Blaine was strongly in favor of the treaty because the McKinley bill's provisions in regard to sugar practically kept the Hawaiians from the benefits of reciprocity. It is thought the new queen's English advisers will keep her from accepting the treaty, as it would prevent closer relations between England and Hawaii.

INDIANS WILL NOT ENLIST.

Secretary Proctor's Little Plan Found to Be Impracticable.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Private advices from Pine Ridge indicate that the war department is likely to fail in its intention to enlist 2,000 Indians in the army. The experiment has already been tried under special instructions given Gen. Miles and has not proved successful. It was the intention to recruit two companies of the First infantry with the young bucks of the Sioux tribe before the departure of that regiment for its regular station in California, but after a month's canvassing the regiment has finally departed without its Indians. They could not be induced to enlist. They objected to going so far away from their native soil. Besides they did not fancy the duty of infantry soldiers. They want to be cavalrymen if they enlist at all, but it had been demonstrated that few if any will be willing to enlist in either arm unless they are sure of a station near their tribes.

Portuguese Rebels Sentenced.

OPORTO, March 24.—The court martial in the case of the soldiers concerned in the revolt of January last has rendered a decision. Capt. Leitao, the principal leader, is sentenced to six years' imprisonment and ten years' banishment in Africa. The other leaders receive more lenient sentences, averaging three years' imprisonment and three years' banishment. Of 500 others accused one-half are liberated and the other half receive smaller sentences.

A Physician's Suicide.

FINDLAY, O., March 24. — Monday morning Dr. B. M. Pahl, a leading German physician of the state, took fifty-three morphia pills, and at 8:30 was found dead in his room, upon the walls of which was found a calculation in figures as to how long he was likely to live after he took the poison, with notes of the effects every thirty minutes until unconsciousness ensued.

Mafia Jurors Indicted.

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—The grand jury returned two indictments in blank Monday. They are for attempting to bribe jurors and are supposed to be against McChrystal and Cooney, the two men previously indicted. The only new feature is the indictment of C. D. O'Malley as an accessory before the fact in the above cases.

Victoria Goes to France.

LONDON, March 24.—Queen Victoria left Windsor castle Monday morning en route to Grasse, a small town in the department of the Alpes-Maritimes, France, 25 miles west of Nice. The queen goes to the south of France via Cherbourg, and not via Calais and Paris, as was announced shortly after the arrival in this country of the Empress Frederick. The Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne visited the Baroness de Rothschild at the villa Victoria last season, and they gave her majesty such a glowing account of the benefits they had derived from the air of Grasse that the queen desided to try it herself.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

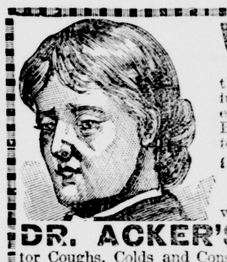

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

"A 1"

From a Catholic Archbishop down to the Poorest of the Poor all testify, not only to the virtues of

ST. JACOBS OIL,

The Great Remedy For Pain,

but to its superiority over all other remedies, expressed thus:

It Cures Promptly, Permanently;

which means strictly, that the pain-stricken seek a prompt relief with no return of the pain, and this, they say, St. Jacobs Oil will give. This is its excellence.

CHAPTER I.

Mr. Jackson picked up a half sheet of note paper and handed it to his friend.

When Mr. Abner K. Gardiner, chairman of the Democratic county committee, prosperous so far as his real estate business was concerned, portly of person, shrewd of eye and merry withal, came down the stairs that Monday morning, two weeks and a half before the election, he was probably as contented a man as could be found in the old Bay state. And why should he not have been? Mr. Gardiner was one of the keenest politicians in the land, loving the game for the power it gave and the delight of matching himself against the long headed policy of his oppenents, but caring nothing whatever for office.

A story told of him will illustrate his character better than columns of description. When Mr. Charles T. Kerr, the chairman of the Republican county committee, found himself embarrassed in his lumber business after the great flood in '81 the first man to come to his assistance was Mr. Gardiner. The reason this gentleman gave was characteristic. "Politics in this county would lose all their snap if Charlie Kerr went up," he said, and drew the check. Now be it observed that this same Charlie Kerr had just elected his ticket, and Mr. Gardiner saw no really good reason why he should not repeat his success the next time, but then Mr. Gardiner loved a "foeman worthy of his steel" with an enduring love.

Honestly anxious as many politicians really are that good men and true should be elected to office to serve and rule the people, Mr. Gardiner prided himself more on the nomination for county judge of William Truesdale Jackson on the Democratic ticket than on all the other men before the people. It had literally cost him years of work and thought to persuade Mr. Jackson to allow his name to be used, and when he at last succeeded he felt that he had added a tower of strength to his side. For of all men in that section none stood higher than "the 'squire," as they called him in kindly country fashion. A sound lawyer, a just and conscientious man, a good citizen, a wise counselor, he was one whom all respected and not a few loved.

A somewhat stern and grave man, his massive face crowned with a forehead like a dome, he looked the ideal judge. Possessed of a ponderous kind of eloquence, with an extraordinary power of making the most intricate case clear to the minds of judge and jury, his practice was naturally large and lucrative. In fact the salary of the position which he sought was far less than that which he earned by his work. It was the tribute he had honestly earned by his life that no man, even among his opponents, suggested that the 'squire wished the position for personal advantage. If you will picture to yourself a somewhat tall man dressed in black, a smoothly shaven face, hair rather thin and grizzled with deep thought, keen yet kindly eyes, which seemed to look through you, a slight stoop of the shoulders, a deep, melodious voice, you will see the 'squire before you.

As Mr. Gardiner entered the pleasant dining room of his home, and greeted the noisy girls and boys who sprang forward to kiss him good morning, his eye caught sight of a note lying on his plate. Recognizing the handwriting of the 'squire he opened it, and as he read an expression of extreme perplexity spread over his face. Dropping the note he eagerly seized the morning paper, and hurriedly looked through it until he found an item which, when he had read, he walked slowly toward the bow window of the room, whistling softly to himself the first few bars of an old hymn tune. Men used to say that you could always tell that Abner Gardiner was puzzled when you heard that air. Picking up the note once more he read it, and whistled again.

"What is it, Abner?" asked Mrs. Gardiner.

"Nothing much; the squire wants to see me," answered her husband absently, and Mrs. Gardiner knew him too well to ask any more questions.

In order that you may see what it was that puzzled Mr. Gardiner so much, I will reprint the note:

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 24.

Homer K. Gardiner, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—An item in The Republican of this morning has attracted my attention. You will find it in the fourth column of the first page under the headline, "Can This Be True?" I should be glad to confer with you before I answer it. Yours faithfully, WILLIAM T. JACKSON.

The item in question was short and read as follows:

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

A correspondent has sent the following note to us, and it seems to call for a reply from Mr. Jackson at once. Without any information on the subject we cannot answer the query, but we hope, for the sake of a man who is generally respected, it is not true.

To the Editor of The Republican:

SIR—Can you tell me whether the William Truesdale Jackson who has been nominated by the Democrats for the responsible position of county judge is the same William Truesdale Jackson who deserted from the Second Massachusetts infantry the night before the battle of Gettysburg, and was condemned by a court martial to suffer the penalty of desertion in the face of the enemy? If he is there are old soldiers enough hereabout to snow him under on election day. Yours, A REPUBLICAN.

Mr. Gardiner finished his breakfast with a light heart and made his way down to Mr. Jackson's house. He never doubted for a second the 'squire had prepared a positive denial of the story, and he found himself wondering with a vague curiosity who the deserter could be. Entering Mr. Jackson's house he found that gentleman in his library. After greeting each other Mr. Jackson picked up a half sheet of note paper and handed it to his friend. On it Mr. Gardiner read:

To the Editor of The Republican:

SIR—In answer to the query contained in your columns this morning permit me to inform you that I am the William Truesdale Jackson who deserted, not the night before but two nights before, the battle of Gettysburg from the Second Massachusetts infantry, and who was subsequently condemned to the penalty of the military crime. My reasons for that act were and are personal to myself. I have only to add that although I was then much younger than I am now and with much less experience than I now have, I would, were I placed in the same position today, again desert before night had fallen. I remain, sir, your obedient servant, WILLIAM T. JACKSON.

Mr. Gardiner looked up, his mouth shaping itself for the hymn tune, and as he looked a faint wave of color for a moment rose to the 'squire's cheek.

"You are not going to send this, I hope," said Mr. Gardiner.

"Most certainly I am. If my fellow citizens choose to honor me with their suffrages, they shall do so with no false pretenses on my part."

"But, my dear 'squire"——

"The thing is true; why should I deny it?"

"There is no use of a denial. Let it alone, say nothing, and there is not a man in the county who will believe it."

Mr. Johnson smiled somewhat sadly. "My friend," he said, "a suppressio veri will not help me in this matter. It is better to tell the truth; better, because it is right, and better policy as well. It is easy to identify me with the deserter—in fact, I have no doubt this has been done already. But even were it not, were that paragraph the last of it, now the question has been raised I could not consent to be silent."

"But the ticket?" broke in the unhappy chairman.

"I think it would be better that I resign."

"Not for a moment. That would be absolutely fatal. But 'squire, if you must acknowledge it, why not tell your reasons for leaving the service? I'm sure they were good ones. Then it would be all right. But that note is so curt; it flaunts your desertion in the face of men as though you were proud of it; it fairly defies all public opinion."

"I am proud of it, sir, and I thank my God that he permitted me to desert," broke in the lawyer in his deepest tone, through which there rang an accent of strong emotion. "But neither to you nor any other man living will I tell why I deserted. It must suffice you that I did, and have never regretted it. Understand me, Mr. Gardiner," and as he spoke the faint color once more showed itself, "I know as well as you the disgrace which attaches to the name of a man who deserts on the eve of a great battle. I know he is called a coward and a poltroon. I am of no sterner stuff than other men, and it has required all the trust I have in One who is wiser than I to make it clear to me that the burden was laid on me for some good purpose.

"I have thought that perhaps some other way might have been found and I have been spared, but it was not to be. I do not regret the act, but I mourn over the necessity for it. My name as a man is as dear to me as yours to you. I make no vain boast, Mr. Gardiner, when I say to you that if my life would benefit my country I would give it gladly. Yet I stand before men as one who fled at a supreme moment of that country's peril. This is not easy for me, for I am a proud man, sir, and I am not a coward; but I console myself as best I may by the consciousness that there is One who knows better than men, and that he in his wisdom has afflicted me. But, sir, while this is hard enough, it would be far worse were I to descend to falsehood, for then I should be ashamed in mine own eyes."

Mr. Gardiner's eyes were moist as he grasped the lawyer's hand and stammered out an apology for his mistaken though well meant advice. He offered to carry the note to the office of The Republican himself, and the 'squire, visibly gratified by this, acquiesced gladly.

To say that Mr. Jackson's answer to The Republican created a storm of talk is to put things in the mildest way. The orators opposed to the Democratic ticket made the most of the weapon which had been given into their hands. Able editorials filled the Republican papers, and the machinery of the Grand Army was used to increase the excitement. While enemies taunted the deserter friends implored Mr. Jackson to speak, but to no purpose. Entreaties and abuse seemed to pass him by with equal lack of effect. When he appeared at public meetings—for as soon as the county committee had decided he should not withdraw the squire showed he was not afraid to face any music going—there was at first a disposition to hiss on the part of some who were there. This, however, was speedily put down by the majority. It was impossible for these people, among whom he had lived true and blameless for many years, to tolerate open disrespect when shown to him, and once the man got a hearing there was little danger of his audience thinking of aught save his spoken thoughts.

Mr. Gardiner, shrewd as usual, and since that talk with the squire respecting him as he never had before, was the first to see the tide had turned, and seeing rejoiced greatly. It became apparent as the days went on, and the first shock wore off, that the impassioned appeals and able denunciations were rapidly losing their effect. Three days before the election a speaker who began a diatribe against "the coward" and "traitor" was fairly hissed into silence. Men said to each other that while desertion was a mighty bad thing, no doubt, the squire said it was right for him to desert, and likely as not he knew. Others thought the man could never have deserted because he was afraid or disloyal; it was not in him. Once the reaction set in it grew as rapidly as the feeling at first, and when the results of the election were declared there were many who felt no surprise.

For it was Judge William Truesdale Jackson now, and his majority was larger than that of any candidate on either side. Whereat Mr. Abner K. Gardiner smiled and chuckled, and smiled again.

CHAPTER II.

Kneeling by her bedside was a boy of about ten years.

In the month of May, 1841, a woman lay dying in the little cottage which used to stand on the old "main road" just outside the then limits of the town of Lynn. Kneeling by her bedside was a boy of about ten years, and on his head the wasted hand of his mother rested, the fingers twining gently through his hair. She was speaking—this mother who was passing away—and the boy drank in every word. She told him in feeble and broken sentences his little sister had no one but him to look to for protection, and she asked him to promise that so long as he should live that protection would be given. Satisfied by the unspoken pledge in his eyes as he looked at her, for she knew what he was, she spoke of the comfort he had been to her since his father's death; of that father who had been taken away so suddenly, and of her own joy at the prospect of seeing her husband once more. Her sorrow, too, at leaving her children dwelt in her mind at times, and then he tried to soothe her by telling her he would be brave and true. And so with a prayer for them on her lips she became silent, and the boy knew when he once more looked at her that the ears that had never been deaf to him were deaf now.

The two children—Willie, aged ten, and May, aged not quite half a year—were not left penniless. Their father, Dr. William Jackson, had accumulated a little money, and their mother had owned property when she married. Their only living relation, a brother of Mrs. Jackson, lived in New York, and he at once asked them to come and live with him. For five years Willie went to the New York schools and May grew up into as charming a little girl as one could find. Then Mr. Truesdale died, leaving his money to his nephew and niece, and Willie made up his mind they would move back to Lynn. Here they lived in the house of their guardian, Judge Black, and Willie in due time went to Harvard, and, winning his degree in arts, passed into the law school.

He was singularly old for his age. Even as a boy he was grave, self contained and generally silent, and he cared little for the amusements which filled the time of his fellows. He was exceedingly fond of reading, and fairly devoured all the books he could find. Studying hard, he stood well up in his classes at all times, but it was not until he got into the law school that he really showed the stuff in him. To the mind of Mr. Jackson—it was curious how soon the use of his first name was dropped by his friends—the law assimilated as its natural food. The dryest of dry treatises possessed an interest for him that nothing else had. He used to astonish his guardian by reading the code for pleasure. For Judge Black was one of those easy going men who drift forward in life's race rather than push, doing their work respectably and living in a thoroughly respectable way.

However, the judge knew a man when he saw one, and he was only too glad to offer his ward a partnership as soon as he had passed the bar. It was not long before the new firm of Black & Jackson began to attract attention in the courts. The senior partner was without a particle of jealousy, and was only too glad to give the credit for the manner in which their cases were presented to his earnest, laborious and painstaking junior. After a year or two men said, with a shake of the head, Lynn could not keep the "young judge," as they called him; that in the natural course of events he would go to Boston and seek a wider field for his abilities.

All this while May Jackson was growing up into the most winsome little creature imaginable. She was utterly unlike her brother. She was capricious, exceedingly pretty, as full of coquetry as she could live; whimsical, but just as charming as a sweet, bright, lovable American girl should be, and she loved her grave, stern brother as she loved no human being. From a time beyond which she could remember nothing he had been father and mother and brother all in one. He was never too busy to listen to her wants and wishes, never unwilling to do things for her. He comforted her in her troubles, rejoiced when she was glad. To him she brought all things that interested her, sure of interest and help from him. And this feeling for her was an odd compound of paternal and fraternal love. He had never for one moment forgotten his pledge to his dying mother, nor had it in truth been difficult to keep, for his love for his sister was a part of Will Jackson's very being. She amused him intensely as she grew up. Her capriciousness was a source of wonder, and she had the charm for him of a constant series of surprises. The two attracted every one that met them, and the love they felt for each other was a very beautiful thing.

In 1858 Will Jackson was 27, and May was a young lady just going into society. The brother had been a partner in the firm for six years, and had built up for himself a business which paid him a handsome income. It was at this time that Miss Carrie Farnham, a connection of Judge Beach, came to Lynn, and Will Jackson met his fate. He fell in love with her as strong men fall in love; he fairly worshiped the ground she walked on. She, too, had not known him very long before she thought she had never seen such a man before. When she went home to Springfield she left the memory of a look from her dark blue eyes for Will Jackson to ponder over, and when, in the following August, he followed her to her home, and as they walked along a lane one evening asked her a question the answer was "Yes."

To his dying day Will Jackson never forgot that lane and the smell of the twilight time. Friends and relatives approved, and the day was set for the wedding. It is probable that May would have alternated between jealousy and gladness were it not that her pretty little head was filled with thoughts of her own just then. The time came for the wedding, and Carrie Farnham went to Boston to do some shopping. I must hurry over this part of the story. There were big headlines in the paper one morning over the story of the railroad wreck, and Will Jackson followed the body of the girl he loved as the agony of the dead march wailed and sobbed from the great organ!

He went back to his desk and plunged into work to find distraction from his sorrow. He never spoke of the girl to any one, repulsing for the first time in his life his sister May. Except that he was graver than before there was little change in the man. The following year May was married to Charlie Farnham, a younger brother of the girl who was "gone," and Will Jackson rejoiced over his sister's happiness. He behaved very generously, he transferred all the property they had together inherited in trust for her and her children. As Mr. Farnham was employed in a bank in Boston May went there to live with her husband, but every week letters from Will and herself crossed each other.

When the gun which was fired on Fort Sumter in 1861 "echoed 'round the world," Will Jackson was one of the first men in Lynn to volunteer. To such a man the call issued by President Lincoln came as an order from heaven, and when the Second Massachusetts infantry was recruited he at once signed the roll. His choice of a regiment was natural, for one of its officers, Capt. and afterward Lieut. Col. C. R. Mudge, who died at Gettysburg on July 3, 1863, and to whose memory the beautiful church of St. Stephens was afterward built in Lynn, was his greatest personal friend. Through the long weary months of fighting and marching Will Jackson went steadily on, doing his duty as he did most things in this life—with all his might.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the government lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and after the use of two and a half bottles was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at F. Sherer & Co's drugstore.

In Laurens county, Ga., Richard A. Odom has some tea plants growing in his yard "which yield an abundance of leaves to supply the family, and the beverage is of the best quality." The plants were obtained from the United States Commissioner of Agriculture in 1880. "They have had no protection and very little care."

A little seed lay in the carter's path;
A little shoot bowed in the strong winds wrath;
A little shrub grew, by its roots held fast:
Then a stout tree braved all the winter's blast.
A little cough started—'twas only light;
A little chill shivered the hours of night;
A little pain came and began to grow;
Then consumption laid all his brave strength low.

Be wise in time. Check the little cough, cure the little chill, dispell the the little pain, ere the little ailment becomes the strong; unconquerable giant of disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, taken in time, is a remedy for these ills.

SUGAR TAKES A JUMP.

Local Grocers Short of the Sweet Staple.

PRICES DOWN NEXT WEEK.

Just Now Janesville's Sweetening Costs a Trifle More Than Usual Because of Unwillingness to Increase Stocks Grocers will soon be Supplied.

Janesville housewives are blessing the McKinley bill. Just now sugar has taken a spasmodic little jump of a cent a pound because of short stocks all around town, but the day draws nigh when granulated sugar will cost but five cents a pound. At midnight March 31 the bottom will fall out of the prices on sugar. The prices went up about a cent a pound a short time ago, but it will come down with a rush April 1.

On that date the new law goes into effect which puts sugar on the free list. Dealers have been preparing for this event for some time past. Retailers have not bought more than was absolutely needed from day to day, and jobbers have followed their example. On the other hand, the importers have accumulated a considerable quantity of sugar which will not be thrown on the market until April 1, when no duty will have to be paid. As yet this stock is under bond, and if it were taken out now the duty would have to be paid.

The market price of granulated sugar in Janesville is at present 6½ cents per pound, but sales at a lower figure have been made by parties who want to get rid of their stock before the fall in prices Nearly all the Janesville dealers have made contracts with sugar houses for goods to be delivered in Janesville on April 1. Several contracts have already been made to deliver sugar at this city for 4¾ cents after that date, and that will probably be the ruling price for a short time until the pressing demand is satisfied. Thereafter brokers expect to see the wholesale price of sugar average about 4 cents a pound. The retailers are now selling granulated sugar at 7 cents a pound, and will sell for 5 cents after April 1. The smaller grocerymen are as usual selling a cent or so higher. Powdered and loaf sugar will be about 5½ and 6 cents after April 1, while brown sugar will practically go out of the market.

Brown sugar is used for many things where it is much better than white or granulated sugar, and for these uses there will still be a demand for the various grades. While at present prices there is considerable demand for it, it will not be possible to furnish it at a paying profit after the reduction in prices has gone into effect. It is well known that the quality of this grade of sugar is such as to make it in reality dearer than granulated, except in a few cases.

"Yes, sugar will be much cheaper," said a west side grocery man in discussing the question. "The new tariff bill has knocked the bottom out of prices and local merchants have been carrying small stocks. We; and I suppose in fact, all Janesville dealers have placed their order for future delivery. One firm in Chicago, and they are a small firm, too, have a contract with a large sugar firm, to furnish them with 600 carloads of sugar, on Chicago side tracks at 12 o'clock on the night of March 31. Chicago firms have a large amount of sugar in bond which cannot be taken out until April 1 without paying the duty on it. There will be a good deal of sugar moved in Chicago a week from to-morrow."

As another result of the bill Janesville children can eat more and better candy. According to circulars sent to local merchants by a big Milwaukee candy house, the reduction on April 1 will be about nine per cent, or a cent a pound. The prospects, the circular states, are that with sugar so cheap less glucose will be used in making candy. There is a difference on this firm's stock of about $10.000 between the present prices of candy and the prices that will prevail on April 1, but that the firm will follow the sugar market nevertheless. The other manufacturers will probably pursue a similar course. In Chicago the candy manufacturers have decided not to mark down prices until April 20.

KNEE-DEEP IN MUD.

Visitors "Stalled" While Being Shown Bower City Advantages.

People coming into the city from the country report the roads to be in a terrible condition: In many places the frost is out and there appears to be no bottom to the roads. It is no uncommon thing to see teams stalled, even in the well-worked streets of the city.

"I was out riding with an engineer from St. Paul yesterday," said Alderman Vankirk, "showing him the different grades of the city regarding sewerage plans. I never saw the streets so muddy. We came near being stalled with our buggy several time. In many places the frost was out and the buggy wheels settled right down."

Alderman Thoroughgood had a similar experience with an engineer who was being shown around the city. Many pond hole and deep gutters were found filled with water, indicating that some new system must soon be adopted to even get rid of the surface water.

Thistles in Peas.

Editor Gazette—Some weeks ago S. Maraden published in your paper a comment in regard to the seeds of the Canada thistle being found with Canadian field peas, and as a consequence I have been asked by a number of persons if I had heard of such trouble with peas. I would say to Mr. Marsden and others who have had similar trouble, that if their seed had come from a reliable house they would have had no such trouble. Wisconsin grown field peas have been been found perfectly clear of weed seeds, of all kinds thistles being found only among the imported seeds.

BOOM IN CHICAGO MARKETS.

Wheat Oats, Corn and Pork Take a Sudden Jump.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 24.—[Special.]—Tremendous excitement prevailed on the board of trade to-day. There was a great advance in prices at the opening, wheat, corn, oats and provisions all being on the boom.

Pork advanced over $1.00 per barrel.

May wheat sold at $1,06⅜, corn at $ 70⅛ and oats $ 46⅜.

MISS SHAWVAN'S RETURN.

Offers of Engagement During Jarbeau's California Trip Refused.

Miss Flo Shawvan has severed her connection with the Jarbeau company, and returned home last night. Miss Shawvan refused to appear in the gavotte—objecting to the costume required. On this account, although flattering inducements were held out to her to join the company in its California trip she refused to sign a contract.

MANY VICTIMS OF GRIP.

Hosts of Janesville People Suffering From Influenza.

Many Janesville people are afflicted with la grippe, and the doctors are having their hands full in waiting on patients. Numbers are confined to their homes, while others having the disease in a milder form are just able to be out. So far no fatal cases have been reported. In Beloit many people are also afflicted with the same disease, J. B. Peet being reported at the point of death.

MAY BE A BIG STRIKE.

Local Switchmen Warned That Trouble is Near.

C. & N. W. ENGINE DISABLED.

William B. Strong Talked of For President of the Mexican Central—New Steps On the Milwaukee & St. Paul—Tracks Covered With Water.

Local members of the Switchman's Union received word this morning that meetings were being held between switchmen and Northwestern officials to consider yesterday's strike. For two hours yesterday not a train moved at the Chicago end of the road. The switchmen refused to work, and a general "tie-up" of the whole road was only averted by the discharge of Yardmaster McInery. If McInery is reinstated the switchmen declare that every man in their union will strike. On the other hand if he is not reinstated the United Order of Trainmen will declare a strike. The fight promises to be a bitter one—labor union against labor union.

An Engine Disabled.

"My engine is dead at Afton. Send some one after us. Davins," was the dispatch received by Chicago & Northwestern officials at the depot this morning. Conductor Devins runs the new Chicago morning passenger train that goes from Janesville to Belvidere and return and is due here at 8:40 in the morning.

Near Afton a hand hole plate on the engine blew out and Engineer Crowley was unable to repair the difficulty. Engine No. 110, Engineer Eber, was sent to Afton and brought the train and the disabled engine to Janesville.

The train pulled out for Belvidere at 10:05—thirty minutes late—in charge of Conductor Devins and Engineer Watson.

New Car Steps on the St Paul.

Passengers on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul trains will have three steps to descend instead of two when they climb out of a train next month. The third step is a patent folding arrangement, which brings the step nearer the platform so that no foot bench is required.

This change necessitates the cutting down of all depot platforms, which are now eight inches too wide, to accommodate the new arrangement. A force of men are now at work cutting down the platform, and the new scheme will go into effect in a few weeks

The new step is let down at stations and raised again before the train starts. The scheme is a new one on this division of the St. Paul road, although the company are operating them on the other lines.

The Tracks Flooded.

Water on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul tracks near Gratiot is making no end of trouble for engineers. Near Gratiot is a bayou in which an ice gorge has been formed that has backed up the water on the track to the depth of fourteen inches. The water is not yet high enough to put out the fires in the engines, but reaches the ash-pan.

W. B. Strong for President.

The name of William B. Strong, of Beloit, ex president of the Achison road, is reported in Boston dispatches to be received with peculiar favor among Mexican Central security-holders as a possible successor of President Wade.

'TIS A GOOD CROP.

Tobacco Buyers Well Satisfied With the 1890 Leaf.

The work in local sorting rooms is progressing very satisfactorily in all the warehouses. Some of the dealers will be through sorting within the next week or ten day, while others will continue for a month. Buyers are well pleased with the '90 crop so far as it has developed. Small lots are occasionally seen coming to the city, but nearly all the tobacco sold has been delivered.

Members of the Rock County Tobacco Growers Association have about made up their minds that about April 20 will close their sorting, and between six and seven hundred cases of tobacco nicely assorted and ready to sweat or sell will be offered. They are now prepared to sell 400 cases that is assorted. Arrangements have been made for some very good Comstock tobacco seed. The best crops that have been seen this year trace their seed back to the Comstock. It is not known just how much can be furnished, but as much as possible that is pure and good will be had, as many as have not good seed are asked to get it so that everything be done to make the crop good next year. Prices may then be kept up. There is still room for better prices by making quality better, and it will be well to remember that the man who gets ten and twelve cents, sows good seed, gets a good growth, and takes good care of it. It is a very simple thing, but it has often made fifty dollars difference in favor of one crop.

Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J. S. Gans' Son, tobacco broker, New York, for the week ending March 23, are:

340 cases, crop of 1889, Pennsylvania Seed at 11¾ to 15 cents.

100 cases, crop of 1888, Pennsylvania Seed, p.lt.

150 cases, crop of 1889, Pennsylvania Havana, at 13½ to 30 cents.

300 cases, crop of 1889, Wisconsin Havana, at 7 to 12½ cents.

185 cases, crop of 1889, State Havana at 16 to 28 cents.

75 cases, crop of 1889, New England Havana at 16 to 50 cents.

200 cases Sundries, at 7 to 35 cents.

Total, 1360 cases.

Will Tell of Wesley.

One of the most striking figures in religious history is that of John Wesley. The recent celebration of his anniversary by the Epworth Leagues of America serves to give added interest to the brilliant sketch of "St. John of England," as the writer, Mr. W. T. Stead characterizes the reverend founder of Methodism, which will appear in the first number of the American edition of The Review of Reviews. The strange contrast and striking parallels between the life of Wesley and that of Charles Bradlaugh, whose biography forms the other character sketch of the April number, lend an unusual interest to both papers.

BRIEF CHIPS OF LOCAL.

Dudes Want To See Her.

The "gilded youth" of the city will be well represented in the front rows at the opera house to-night. Four of them spent considerable time around the Myers House this afternoon trying to get a glympse of Miss Price Post, who married the son of a Denver millionaire after a brief courtship, and who separated from her husband shortly after the marriage. She is said to be an uncommonly pretty woman.

Looks Different Now.

Edward King, of the firm of King & Lamb, Chicago, the largest dealers in buckwheat flour and all kinds of cereal goods in the United States, is looking over the city to-day. This is Mr. King's first visit to the Janesville since 1855, when he stopped at the old Stage House which occupies the present site of the Myers.

"Natural Gas" To-Night.

Theater goers are on the alert for the coming of Donnelly & Girard and their great company, who will present Natural Gas in a new meter at the opera house to-night. The play is said to be a perfect cyclone of fun, and Eddie Girard's Irish policeman is one of the great character bits of the stage. The sale of seats has been heavy.

Making Sewerage Estimates.

Quite a number of prominent civil engineers have visited the city within the past few days for the purpose of viewing the ground with reference to sewer plans. The special committee of the common council expect to be able to make a report to the common council at the next meeting regarding plans for a complete sewer system.

Want Janesville Soldiers.

William Cassidy, of the recruiting service, United States Army, was in the city today, posting hand bills calling for the United States Army. Captain Harris, of the recruiting service, will be at the Myers house April 2, at which time all information relating to enlistments can be obtained.

Have Robins and Butterflies.

A live butterfly was shown in one of the show cases at Frank Sherer's drug store today. The light-winged curiosity was discovered in Davies & Son's grocery store this morning, and taken to the drug store purely for exhibition purposes. Admission free.

D. H. Rust Rides the Goat.

Rockford Register-Gazette—D. H. Rust changed his clothes yesterday so he could ride the Masonic goat, his first trip without spoiling his swell garments. He and Henry Potter and Mr. Swiris all had a go at the goat.

Fair and Colder.

Forecast for Janesville and vicinity—Fair and colder.

The temperature as observed by E. B. Heimstreet during the last twenty-four hours was as follows:

At 7 a. m. ..... 32 | Maximum 48
At 1 p. m. ..... 32 | Minimum 27

Apples Dear as Oranges.

Good table potatoes are now retailing in this city at $1.20 per bushel, and dyspeptic looking apples at sixty cents a peck. Counting waste, the price is about the same as for the best grade of Indian river oranges.

Bought Spring Brook Lots.

W. H. Greerman has bought of the Spring Brook Improvement company, Lot Number 6, Spring Brook addition, for $250. E. W. Lowell has bought of the same company, Lots 60 and 98, for $560.

Beloit Deep in Mud.

"Talk about muddy streets in Janesville," remarked Alderman Childe, "you ought to go down and through the streets of Beloit. The mud and slush down there is knee deep. Janesville has no cause to grumble."

Easter Among Templars.

Easter services will be held at the Asylum for the Janesville Commandery No. 2, K. T., on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Easter tea will be served after the service.

Young Men As Hosts.

Invitations have been issued for an informal reception to be given by the young gentlemen of the Congregational church at the church parlors Wednesday evening.

Sold Brass Too Cheap.

Fred Daily, a Beloit boy twelve years old, has been sent to the reform school for stealing a brass wash boiler that cost the owner four dollars and selling it to a junk man for thirty-five cents.

Robins Always on Hand.

BELOIT CITIZEN—Mr. Allen informs us that several robins were singing in the trees about his residence on Sunday morning. They came down from Janesville that morning.

A Postoffice in Jeffris.

"Jeffris," D. K. Jeffris, lumbering town in northern Wisconsin, now has a postoffice and A. VanGolderk is the post master:

BRADFORD PATRONS FLOURISH.

Their Social a Success—The School Term Ended—Other Notes.

BRADFORD, March 25—The Patrons of Industry, of Bradford, are flourishing and assisted by the literary society they have bought an organ. They have have a programme and a good time at all their meetings. The social given by the Patrons at Mr. Hedditch's was well attended considering the weather, and all had a good time.

Miss Jeannette Inman closed her fifth term of school at Bradford Center Friday last. Interesting exercises were held in the church, after which the pupils presented their teacher with a beautifully bound volume of Jean Ingelow's poems. The board have secured Miss Inman's services for the spring term.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedditch entertained Mr. and Mrs. Gellingham of Neenah last week.

The Y. P. S. C. E, of Bradford, is flourishing. Their meeting Sunday evening was very interesting and another meeting will be held at seven o'clock.

Will Dykeman is able to be out again after having a siege of the grippe.

WILL LOSE ONE MEMBER

Rock County to Suffer in th Re-Districting.

MAY VOTE WITH JEFFERSON

Mr. Winans Hints that in Forming Senatorial Districts Rock Will be Joined to Adjoining Townships of Some Other County.

There is a possibility that Rock county will hereafter be denied a strictly local representation in the legislature. The assembly and senatorial districts may be so arranged as to couple Rock county with parts of adjoining counties. Assemblyman Winans was seen by a Gazette reporter last evening just before he left for Madison, and in reply to question he said:

"Rock county will certainly lose one member of the assembly, and it now looks as though more territory would be attached to the Seventeenth senatorial district. According to the basis of apportionment it will require a little over sixteen thousand population for an assemblyman, and a little over forty-three thousand for a senator. We have more population than is required for two assemblymen, but not enough for a senator, and an effort is being made to attach outside territory, not only to the senatorial district but also to the assembly districts. Just what will be done I cannot say, but I shall endeavor to have it arranged to give us one senator and two representatives. The large increase in population in the northern part of the state calls for an increase of representatives, and the southern part which has not materially increased, will lose what is gained in the north. The apportionment bill is now in the hands of the democratic members of that committee, it will soon be reported to the entire committee, and I think it will be ready for presentation to the house b, the tenth of April.

"The charter amendments are now in the hands of the judiciary committee and I have given instructions for the committee to hold them for the present.

"The bill relating to a register of probate has been published, and the bill relating to the municipal court will be passed this week, as I am informed the bill is not objected to by the parties concerned therein. There is no other local legislation pending that I know."

"When will the legislature adjourn?"

"I think the 15th of April. The greater part of legislation at this session, as in former sessions, has been amendments to city charters, The uniform charter is a good thing, but it cannot be made effective in cutting off these private city charters in any way short of a constitutional amendment. I think it would be a good move, and would save the people a large amount of money."

Married—Wednesday evening, March 18, 1891, at 7 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Christena Scott, in La Prairie, by Rev. D. R. Grover—Miss Belle Scott and George McLay. Both bride and groom are well known to a large circle of friends in this vicinity.

Gillies & Jones sell salt at $1 per barrel.

The public schools closed the winter term last Friday with exercises at the Congregational church, consisting of retoricals by the younger scholars and a demorest medal contest by eight of the older pupils. The exercises of the evening excited a great deal of interest among all the patrons of the school and manifested good work on the part of both teachers and students. Each contestant did so well that the judges found it difficult to decide which was best, but the medal was finally awarded to Miss Laverna Gillies. The teachers were assisted in this work by the W. C. T. U. and the L. T. L., both of which are in a very prosperous condition at this place.

MILLINERY—EASTER—MILLINERY.

Opening—Wednesday night and Thursday. Mrs. Kittie Johnson, of Cleveland, Ohio, assisted by Miss Thorne, of Whitewater, Wis., has charge of this department. J. B. BENNET.

Model Motive Power.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has recently placed in service on its fast trains between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, three new engines which are doubtless the finest and fastest ever built in this country. These new flyers have driving wheels six feet, six inches high and cylinders 20 inches by 24. The large cylinders give them tremendous power and the high drivers protect the machinery from the rack and strain incident to driving smaller engines at great speed. There is practically no limit to the speed to which these new marvels may be driven and they skim over the rails as smoothly as a swallow over a lake.

Another recent addition to the motive power of the company is a consignment of eight powerful, ten wheel passenger engines, designed for service on the mountain divisions. These are the heaviest ten wheel engines ever constructed, weighing sixty-seven and one-half tons. They have driving wheels six feet two inches high and cylinders 21 inches by 26. One of these machines performs the work heretofore requiring two of the ordinary class and they take the heavy through express trains up the mountain grades quickly and with perfect ease.

The Mt. Clare shops of the company have recently completed an order for ten switch engines of the highest type, and sufficiedtly powerful to make up a train equal to the full drawing power of a consolidated freight engine. Also three new heavy weight passenger engines, having driving wheels five feet eight inches, and cylinders twenty inches by twenty-four. These engines are now doing excellent work; they are very powerful and susceptible of great speed.

In addition to the foregoing the company has now under construction at its Mt. Clare shops ten powerful ten wheel engines designed for fast freight service and for heavy passenger trains on occasion, also twelve consolidated freight engines of great power.

These additions to its motive power are in line with the other great improvements constantly being made in the general betterment of the B. & O. property by its present management, which have been noted by the press from time to time, and the rapid augmentation of the passenger traffic of the company indicates that the public is quick to recognize the present and constantly increasing efficiency of its train service.

TROUBLE ABOUT LAMPS.

Small Boys Break Those in Outlying Parts of Town, and in Consequence The Posts Will be Moved—New Cross Walks Ordered.

The question of bonding the city for two new school houses will be submitted to a vote of the people at the coming election. The submission, while it is merely a matter of form, was decided upon as the easiest way to settle the matter, by the council last evening. A communication was read from the board of education, submitting plans and specifications for the proposed new buildings. The plans were accepted and an order was passed providing for submitting the question of issuing twenty thousand dollars in bonds for school purposes, to a vote of the people at the ensuing city election.

Alderman Horn stated that the oil man contractor complained that the new oil lamps put up by the city since the contract was awarded him, required more attention and more oil than the old lamps, and asked that he be allowed two dollars a year extra compensation for the new lamps. Referred to committee for investigation.

Parties having repeatedly destroyed the oil lamps near the fair ground and on the cemetery road, the posts were ordered removed and placed where the people would appreciate and protect them.

There being no bids submitted for building the north pier for the Monterey bridge, the clerk was directed to continue the advertisement until the next regular meeting of the council. Orders were issued as follows:

Alderman Thoroughgood—For a block cross walk on Glen street, across North Bluff street.

Alderman McLean—for a block cross walk on Center avenue across Center street.

Council Room Echoes.

The appointment of George Phelps as a special police without compensation from the city, was confirmed.

The bond of the Milwaukee Bridge & Iron Co., relating to the Monterey bridge contract, was approved.

The contract for furnishing two United States flags to the fire department was awarded to S. L. Hildebrand, at a cost of $13 each.

An appropriation of ten dollars was made to the chief engineer for the purpose of paying a reward for information given by parties relating to turning in false fire alarms.

The bill of Nathan Thurston for six dollars, claimed as damages sustained by his sleigh being wrecked by the fire department, was referred back with a request that the bill accompany the claim.

W. H. H. Macloon having filed an affidavit showing the amount of coal delivered by him, his bill was allowed and the chief engineer was directed to allow Mr. Macloon to deliver the remainder of the coal called for in the contract.

Value of Changing Advertisements.

Picking up an old journal the other day I found a statement to the effect that a certain patent medicine firm had not (at that time) changed the wording of its advertisements for thirteen years. While I am a thorough believer in judicious advertising I doubt if such advertising as that would accomplish any good after a few months of publication. No doubt ninety-nine readers out of a hundred would throw aside the paper at sight of the familiar heading with the exclamation, "The same old story." Though publishers may save considerably in composition bills by permitting advertisements to "stand" in their columns for a year or more, they must lose considerable in the ill effect upon other would be advertisers.

It is to the interest of publishers that their patrons should find that "it pays to advertise," and those advertising columns are most attentively perused which are most frequently changed. A publisher who allows an advertisement to stand without change in his columns for over three months is doing his own business an absolute harm. Advertisements are being looked upon as news, and as such they should be fresh and interesting. Invite your patrons to make frequent changes in their announcements. It will pay them, and this will have a reflex action upon your own receipts.—National Publisher and Printer.
